S2 E1: Day of the Prank

S2 E2: Day of the Game

Gavin won't stop playing games on Ricky's phone and despite his best efforts Ricky can't distract him. Meanwhile Ricky's latest art creations are a Fish Bat and Ball, a Catapult inspired by da Vinci and some epic art with remote control toys and plenty of horsepower.

S3 E5: Day of the Dream

Ricky's having really weird dreams, which lead to him to make surreal art including giant hands and a burger hat inspired by Rene Magritte. After scoffing some cheesy snacks Ricky and Gavin both fall asleep and instead of his "Ninja", Ricky gets his "pyjamas on" to create some illuminating dream art.

S3 E8: Day of the Spy

Ricky's always wanted to be a spy, but when he starts receiving mysterious phone calls full of code words he's not so sure. Making a secret book and selfie collage inspired by David Hockney, he agrees to a rendezvous at the Tate Modern where he makes art that's licensed to thrill.

S4 E6: Day of the Gossip

While looking after Gav's cat and Sarah's guinea pig, Ricky gets bitten and suddenly he can hear the pets talking! Not only that, they're gossiping about him. He also has to contend with the Grand Master making a kazoo and artist Joan Miro inspiring him to craft a 3D name sculpture, before heading to the Yorkshire Sculpture Park to make animal art really worth talking about!

S4 E8: Day of the Dummy

Ricky finds a dummy and after putting a curly wig on it, he decides it looks like his mate Ella. After a power surge in the flat, the mannequin comes alive, but only Ricky can see it. Unperturbed he makes a brainbox memory keeper, a satchel inspired by Peter Blake and a magic wallet, before the real Ella turns up. Taking the dummy to the dump can they make epic art from the scrapyard trash?

S4 E10: Day of the World Trip

Ricky decides he needs to explore the World with Gavin and Sarah. While they decide where to go and what to take, Ricky makes a suitcase desk tidy, a marbling collage inspired by artist Chris Ofili and a Mexican Day of the Dead lamp. Heading to the airport in Gav's old car will they make it in time for their flight, or will they be using their luggage to make a huge picture postcard?
